FRIDAY FIRE CAUSES EXTENSIVE DAMAGE TO NEWBY BUILDINGS

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the barn, stable, shed, and badly damaged the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Wight and left eight persons homeless at North Newry last Friday morning. The home, one of the oldest in town, was built approximately 150 years ago and had always been in the Wight family. Five generations of the family had lived there. It was presently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Wight, their grandson and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Wight and children. The younger Wights were burned out two months ago and had been living with their grandparents while awaiting the arrival of their new mobile home.

The fire which broke out in the barn about 8 a. m. was discovered when the children went outside to wait for the school bus. They told their mother and the Bethel Fire Department was called. The flames spread to the stable, shed and house before the fire department arrived. The house was saved but was badly damaged by fire, smoke and water. Neighbors and firemen saved some furniture and personal belongings.

Sparks from the burning buildings started a grass fire which burned over approximately twenty acres and for a time threatened the homes of Mrs. Eleanor Morton and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bachelder.

The Bethel Fire Department responded with a pumper and two tank trucks and another call was sent to Bethel for more help. The Rumford Fire Department was also called but this call was cancelled.

Roderick McMillin, former Bethel fire chief, estimated the loss at $25,000. It is understood that this was partially covered by insurance.

Lawrence Gould, a world famous geologist and Arctic expert, said, "I do not think the greatest threat to our future is from bombs or guided missiles. I don't think our civilization will die that way. I think it will die when we no longer care, when the spiritual forces that make us wish to be right and noble die in the hearts of men. Arnold Toynbee has pointed out that nineteen out of twenty-one notable civilizations have died from within, not by conquest from without. . . . It happened slowly, in the quiet and the dark when no one was aware."

Among passages to be read from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed, will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and be sorry, he was little part in the atonement. . . . In the at-one-ment with God, . . . for he lacks the practical repentance, which reforms the

No. But we can learn to let it mold and fill our lives. Hear this public lecture, "What Is Your Potential?" by JANE O. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

April 4, 1968

To the Editor of the "Citizen"

I would like to add my feelings on the zoning to the list of grippers you must already have. In his letter of April 1st, Mr. Cymrot makes some points I would like to reply to. He states: "If the citizens of the town are unhappy with the ordinance they can always repeal it." I went to the special town meeting held Aug. 7, 1967. I saw the zoning in rural areas abolished by a hand vote, then saw a 2nd written vote come out tied. Now the way I understand it, the legal thing to do would have been to either have another vote or go back and call the hand vote valid like it was on all the other articles. But the zoning stands as it was. I also saw in front of me that night four elderly ladies. They were not voting, just watching, yet while people were lining up for the written ballot, a woman who lives in the village and would not be affected either way the vote went, came over and told these ladies that if a certain lot on Paradise Street were to be sold the person that bought it could start a slaughterhouse if the zoning were abolished. Three of those ladies got up and voted to keep zoning on this story. Even if the zoning in the rural areas had been abolished, it would not affect Paradise Street, but these ladies took that woman's lie as truth, and tied the vote. If this letter were half as good as that woman's tongue, zoning would go out tomorrow.

Thank you,
 Gilbert L. Haines

To Editor, Oxford County Citizen:

Whenever a group of people meet and conversation turns to world, national or local conditions there is usually concern over the encroachment of government on state and individual rights.

We feel the present zoning ordinance is encroachment as near home as possible. It doesn't matter who takes away those rights, Washington, Augusta, or the town, the individual has lost rights on which this country was founded, and many of us have seen service to preserve.

We wonder how many realize how little these ordinances protect them. First, no one who had been denied a permit and fought it has lost, so this makes the law only a nuisance. Second, if you have property which doesn't meet requirements that are stipulated by the zoning board and the property remains vacant for one year it cannot be reoccupied. There are many dwellings in town that this could apply to, maybe even yours. Third, seventy-five per cent of the dwellings and business places in the residential zones do not have lots of the required size. So, if fifty per cent of one of these buildings were destroyed from any cause, it could not be rebuilt. Thus, your insurance would pay you fifty per cent, your lot would be useless and you could look for a new place to build or buy.

We wonder if these planning boards have been looking for the welfare of the town as a whole. One of the original members is with a firm which has bought up some of the better farm land in town, taken it out of taxation by a so-called reforestation project, and created a potential fire hazard. In addition, this person has let the buildings on the land go without repair and have made them a disgrace to the town.

If we check the maps most areas zoned commercial and industrial are owned by business firms already. This gives the owners control of any competition which might wish to locate a business here. This may be purely accidental, but we wonder.

In closing how many can say before zoning that their property rights were infringed upon by their neighbors, or abutters. Secondly, whose money is invested in your property? Who pays the taxes? Who pays the insurance and upkeep? Does your neighbor or someone on the other side of town? The planning board? Or you?

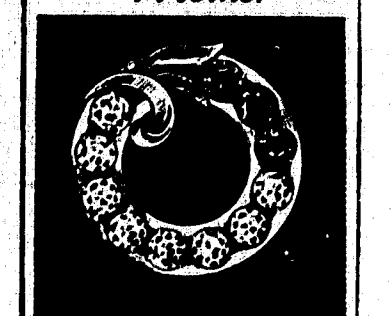

If the answer is you do, let's get back where we control our own property.

Arthur R. Gilbert

Editor's Note: In the interest of accuracy it might be well to note that the planning board member connected with a firm that has bought up "some of the better farmland" has been on the panel only since 1966, hence is not an original member. Also land referred to in "so-called reforestation" is still on the tax rolls. Land in programs such as this is eligible for exemption, but in this case it has not been requested.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Collista Morgan, Corres. —
All nature seemed to rejoice in the fine weather of Easter Sunday. The ten minutes I waited on my porch before leaving for church spoke of this. In that time I noted ducks on the far shore, muskrats by the big elm down front, on the lawn grackles, starlings and my robin (I call him gramp) who nests in the maple out back, a song sparrow on the hedge, phoebe, with last year's nest still on the corner of the garage, the red wings at the edge of the pond, flickers that raise their young in a hole in an old tree stump, and the latest arrivals, tree swallows which take the bird houses.

The buds of the maples were turning red and the crocuses were blooming.

Inverted at the ponds edge stood gray rocks and the distant trees looking over to see themselves in the clear smooth water. My mountain at the end of the pond cast its reflection making itself doubly beautiful.

Saturday evening the frogs and peepers started their orchestra of harmonizing music. They seem to have a signal and all start at one time. (Can there be a leader with a baton?) hundreds of them. Then again they all stop and there is silence over the waters, or a single peep here and there. It makes one wonder about the sudden change. Anyway it is April's music and once you are in tune with the country this orchestra adds peace.

Thus it continues into the twilight as we look across the waters to the rims of the pines and up to the hills where the sun sinks to rest. The music goes on and on into the night.

When one knows and loves the country then to them these things breathe the spirit of peace
